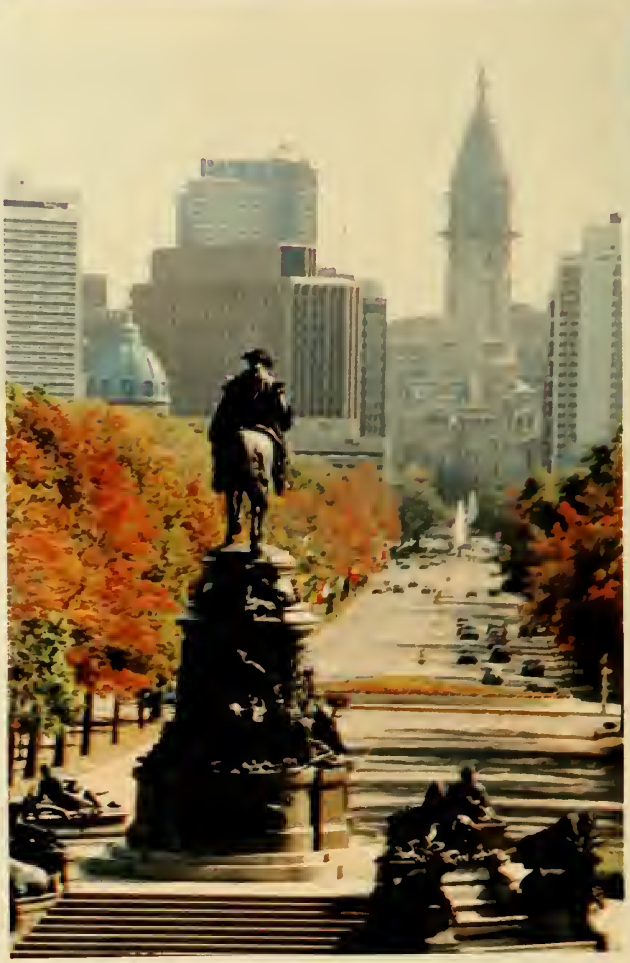
Stethoscopes, reflex hammers, ophthalmoscopes; these are the tools of the physician. They enable us to examine all that we can see and hear — tangible things. Yet, in the practice of medicine, there is much which is not readily perceived. Disease and illness can, and often do, hide from us and our instruments. As doctors, we must find ways to surmount this dilemma, which has confounded physicians since the origins of the practice. We must use everything we have at our disposal and indeed, we possess a great many gifts upon which to call: our minds, our hearts, our desire to help others — all can drive us forward to define these things which we cannot see. They can help us grasp the intangible.

PHILADELPHIA
The Tangible City

Philadelphia. City of brotherly love and athletic disaster, it was our home during our four years at Hahnemann. When we had time to take advantage of it, this city had much to offer. Hahnemann's Center City location put us right in the middle of the action, with several restaurants, bars and shops within walking distance. Philadelphia's skyline is dominated by William Penn, the city's founder, who stands high atop City Hall where nothing goes unseen. However, Billy is no longer "top dog," for Philadelphia has its own skyscraper currently under construction, the first building to stand taller than William Penn's hat. Look out New York skyline . . . .



PHILADELPHIA

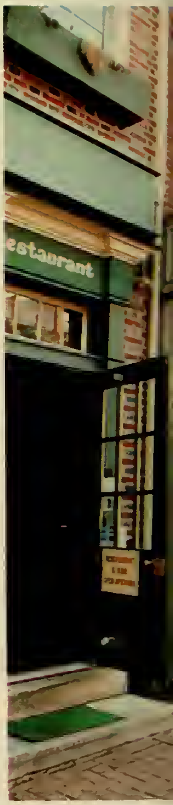
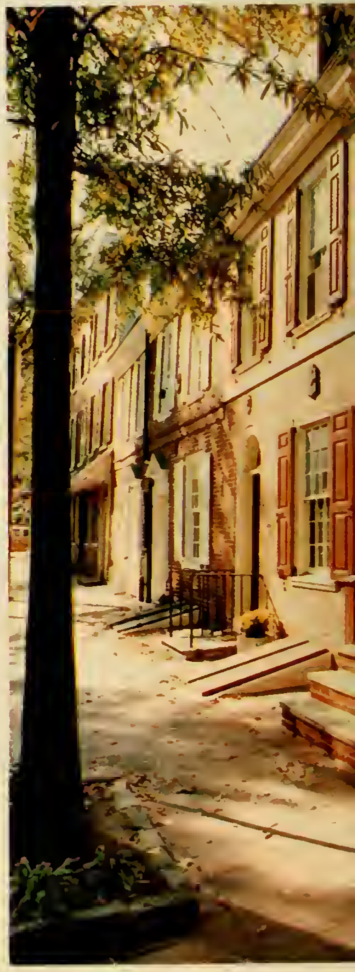
Center City





Philadelphia is quite a unique city in that its neighborhoods are still dominated by particular ethnic groups. South Philadelphia, the hub of Italian culture, is the place to go for an Italian feast, a Pat's Cheesesteak, or perhaps just a stroll through the open-air market. Deep in South Philly, one finds the Sports Complex, home of Philadelphia's professional sports teams. After the game, one could go north to Head House Square, where a Bass Ale at the Dicken's Inn might be in order. Once the whistle is wet, the stage is set to promenade down South Street, Philadelphia's own "Greenwich Village," where everything, and anything, goes.

"South Philly"

Penn's Landing, as its name implies, is where the city's founder first dropped anchor. The Waterfront is always a popular place to visit, with its tall ships as the leading attraction.

Logan Square

The Logan Square section of Philadelphia is right in Hahnemann's back yard. In the center of the square is one of the city's most impressive fountains (it is rumored that many a Hahnemann student set out to break the Olympic freestyle record after a long Thursday evening at Doc Watson's). Flanking the fountain are the Philadelphia Museum of Art and the Franklin Institute, where one may go to expand one's fund of general knowledge.

HAHNEMANN UNIVERSITY

The Academic Environs

Broad and Vine was our address for four years, while we slaved away in pursuit of medical knowledge. Members of the Class of 1987 will not soon forget the early morning awakenings to attend lectures in Geary Auditorium during our pre-clinical years. If the three-day-old cup of coffee from Bonanza was not enough to wake us for the ensuing lectures, the loud horns of the Vine Street traffic as it intended to end our lives certainly did the job. On cold, windy winter days, classmates could be seen helplessly blown out of control in the 15th Street Wind Tunnel. Ronald McDonald, our next-door neighbor, was always willing to serve us fine cuisine with excellent service during late nights on call.

THE CLASS OF 1987

More Than Meets The Eye

SCARLET FEVER
GANGREEN

The Class of 1987, the finest class to graduate since the Class of 1986, was made up of people from all walks of life and all civilized areas of the known free world, as well as California. We assembled in August of 1983, fresh from college, not knowing what lurked beyond the new, electric, automatic rotating door on 15th Street. For those who survived the first Gross Anatomy exam, there was always the second Physiology exam to help us along with applications to law school. Sophomore year brought us Pathology, Pharmacology, and new stethoscopes to wear around our necks.

During third year, our Clinical skills increased exponentially, with some of us even able to hear heart sounds with that precious gift from Littman.

Second year offered us freedom of choice and an ability to pursue our own areas of interest. It all went so fast, though. It seems like only yesterday Doctors DePace and Blumenstein were doing their Abbott and Costello routine. Where does it all go? . . . . .

CLASS OF 1987

Nurse
Pinsley

DOCTORS

They work with herbs
and penicillin.
They work with gentleness
and the scalpel.
They dig out the cancer,
close an incision
and say a prayer
to the poverty of the skin.
They are not Gods
though they would like to be;
they are only human trying to fix up a human.
Many humans die.
They die like the tender,
palpitating berries
in November.
But all along the doctors remember:
First do no harm.
They would kiss if it would heal.
It would not heal.
If the doctors cure
then the sun sees it.
If the doctors kill
then the earth hides it.
The doctors should fear arrogance
more than cardiac arrest.
If they are too proud,
and some are,
then they leave home on horseback
but God returns them on foot.

I would like to dedicate this page to my family who without the joint efforts of all of them this dream would have never become a reality.

To my grandparents; Who as immigrants had the courage to leave their families behind for the hope of having a better life in this country.

To my parents; Who had the love for each other and their children, to guide and nurture me through life and yet allowed me to have the flexibility to develop my own character.

To my aunts and uncles; who pitched in whenever necessary to provide me with the support I needed to strive ahead towards my goal.

To my brother; Who taught me the meaning of success, perseverance and tenacity, he always supported my journey no matter how bleak it might have looked at times.

To my sister; Who helped me through the difficult times with an understanding heart, a sympathetic ear and always an open house to stay in.

This degree is being shared by all of us: I may have contributed the many hard hours of studying and the years of my life, however many others contributed their prayers, love, home cooked meals and finances to make it all possible. I pray for God's blessing and guidance throughout my life in my career of medicine.

"The men where you live," said the little prince, "raise five thousand roses in the same garden — and they do not find in it what they are looking for."

"They do not find it," I replied.

"And yet what they are looking for could be found in one single rose, or in a little water."

"Yes, that is true," I said.

And the little prince added:

Assignment: America

By Phyllis Battelle

About Safaris—Ask Billie—He's Nine!

NEW YORK. — Less than two months ago, little Billie Halmi — he's just nine — was charged by a rhinoceros in Africa.

It didn't change him much. None of the billion freckles that blanket his all-boy face have been bleached out by fear. But he was, he admits, scared.

"OH, YEAH," is how he puts it quietly. "Those guys (the rhino set) nearly tipped over our car three times."

Why?

"Oh, well, they are always grouchy because they can't see anything but blurry. Their eyes are no good and when they see you, like blurry, they charge."

How did you get away?

"Well, when they got almost to our car, I guess they smelled it wasn't something to bump into, so they chickened out."

He grins. A vast grin.

Over the past decade, African safaris have been the chic vacation for wealthy, sporty people, and we've interviewed several of them upon their return. They were all very amusing and poetic and technical — but Billie, the only child we've seen who's tromped the jungle route, presents an even more alluring account. He doesn't volunteer information, but answers questions gamely. Such as.

Are there other dangerous animals in the jungle?

"OH, WELL, SURE. Elephants. On the — what do you call it? — reservation, people feed bananas to the elephants and they get a sweet tooth for bananas, and sometimes when it gets real strong and they want a banana and you don't have any bananas, they smash your car."

Wow. By stomping on it?

"No, they pick up the car in their trunk and drop it down.

"But there are other good things, smart things, about elephants. They keep mud on their backs all the time or else their skin would crack. My father told me that. Sometimes they fight each other. I saw one fight and when they broke it up, one elephant had a tusk out. But he'll grow it back. My father told me that, too."

(Billie's father is Robert Halmi, award winning photographer, formerly with Life, and now producer-cameraman for a syndicated TV series titled "The Outdoorsman.")

Did you see any crocodiles? Billie is asked.

"Yes, crocodiles sleep a lot, and when they do they have their jaws open, and skimmers (those are birds) fly in their mouths and pick food out of the crocodiles' teeth. That's a kind of funny thing."

HOW ABOUT LIONS?

"Oh, well, lions sleep a lot too. They eat every three days, and then they're full and lie around a lot."

And what do lions eat?

"Mostly all the animals that are around except cheetahs. Lions don't tangle with cheetahs, just like people don't. That would be like humans eating humans, because lions and cheetahs are both cats. But lions eat elephants sometimes."

Really?

"I mean old elephants. I don't think they attack strong ones."

Did you see any other animals?

"Oh sure. All kinds. I like the monkeys best. We had a pet one called Pilly that went everywhere with us and he would play with me. But one day my mother wore a coat that had the skin of a leopard inside (the lining) and Pilly saw it and thought it was a real leopard and bit her. It didn't hurt very much, and Mom took off the coat and they were friends again. Monkeys are fun like that."

Did you happen to see any hyenas?

"Yes. They're like little bears, when you look at them, but they sound scarey at night. Oh, and the buffaloes are a little scarey, because they can tip over cars, too. If they're little — I mean the cars."

Did you meet many African people?

"THE MASAIS. Yes. They use twigs from trees to pick their teeth, instead of toothbrushes. They're always picking their teeth. They have the cleanest, whitest teeth you've ever seen. But the boys and girls don't have any toys, none at all. They play with just stones."

Did you enjoy the safari, Billie? Would you recommend a trip like this to your friends?

"Yes."

Did you ever take another trip you like better?

"Yes, when I went to Acapulco and France and Florida."

Sounds like you're going to be a world traveler, maybe a photographer like your dad, when you grow up. What an exciting adventurous life it will be . . .

"No, it won't, ma'am," said Billie, quietly but firmly.

"I'm going to be a doctor."

The Kimpels of Wurtemburg are making a family affair out of the sixth annual running of the Ledger-sponsored 10-K race at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Margaret "Peg" Kimpel, 48, of 600 Meadowland Ave. is one of 20 women who have signed up to run the 6.2 miles, according to Ed Leymarie, chairman of the event.

Mrs. Kimpel's husband, Bob, 48, is among the 82 men who have signed up, Leymarie reported.

Beckie Kimpel, 26, of Philadelphia, daughter of the Kimpels, also signed up and so has her sister, Mary Kimpel Glenn, 25, and Mary's husband, Douglas Glenn, 24. The Glenns are from Wichita, Kan.

Kimpel, a local jeweler, ran the race last year as well as in 1983. His daughter Beckie also ran last year and so did his son-in-law Douglas Glenn. It is the first time for Mrs. Kimpel and for her daughter Mary.

"Right. (The patients) have diseases, and by God we treat them: aggressively, objectively, completely, and we never give up."

"Well, that's just it. I've been taught that the treatment for them is to do nothing. The more you do, the worse they get."

"What? Who taught you that?"

"The Fat Man."

The words plowed two furrows on the (Chief of Medicine's) brow, and he said, "surely you don't believe the Fat Man, do you?"

"Well, at first I did think it was crazy, but then I tried it out for myself, and surprisingly, it worked. When I tried your way — Jo's way — they developed incredible complications. I'm not sure yet, but I think the Fat Man had a point. He's nobody's fool, Sir."

"I don't understand. The Fat Man taught you that to deliver no medical care is the most important thing you can do?"

"The Fat Man said that that was the delivery of medical care."

"What? To do nothing?"

"That's doing something. We do as much nothing as we can . . . ."

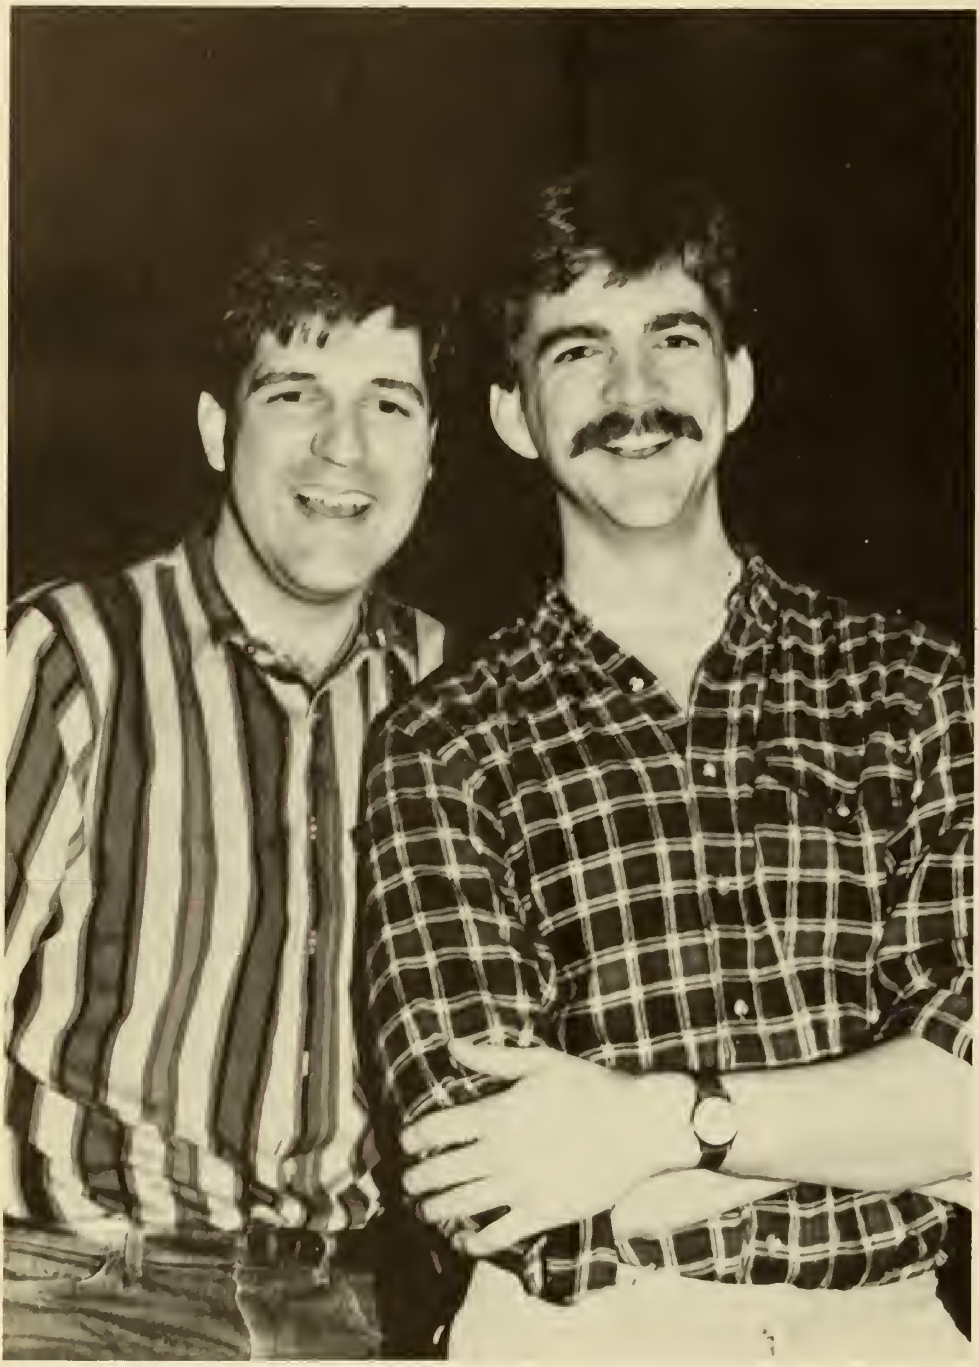
MATCH DAY . . .

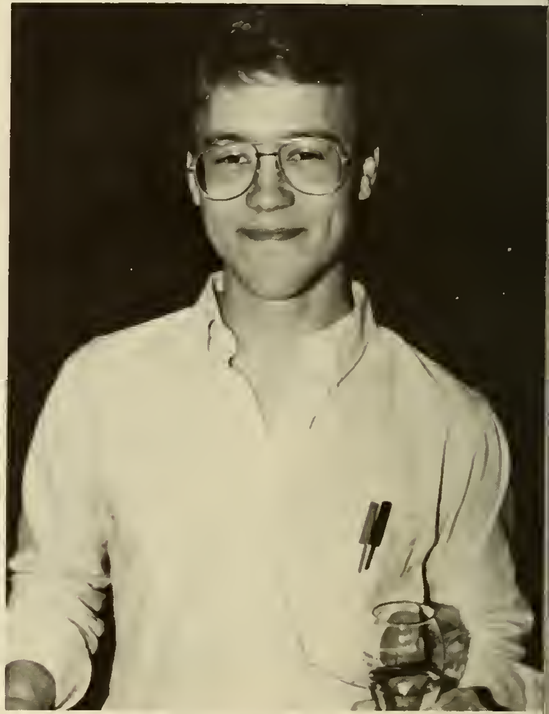
MARCH 18, 1987

We began medical school four years ago, many of us not knowing which area of the profession we would eventually pursue. During our first three years, we began to experience the major specialties. Fourth year brought with it the opportunity to sample the various subspecialties, as we were asked to decide upon a residency program. All the studying, the histories and physicals, the early morning rounds and the interviews came together in a crescendo at the end of a long, tedious and uncertain process — the Match.

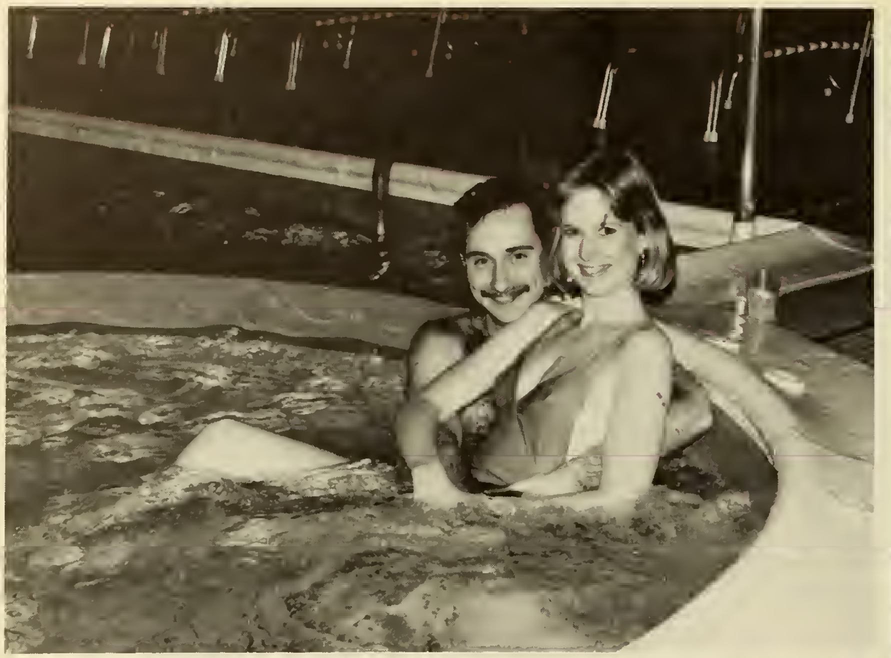
After pondering Rank Order Lists over and over, trying to envision ourselves in the cities and towns of our prospective residencey programs, we mailed the envelopes to Illinois. And we waited.

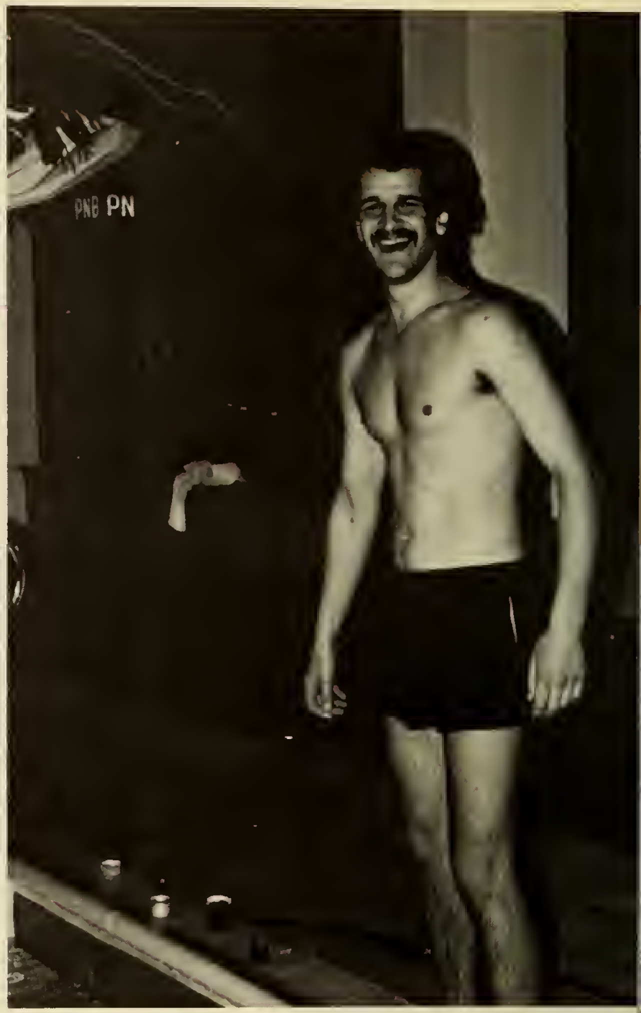
On March 18, 1987 at high noon, our fates (for the next several years, at least) were disclosed to us. There were thrills, surprises and even some disappointments — not unlike those of life, for Match day as well as residency training is just a part of the larger scheme. We have chosen careers that are more than just jobs — they encompass us in every aspect. It is a challenge we look forward to with great anticipation.





Group photos courtesy of Sam Psoras, Phila. Daily News





PNB

We opened our envelopes in Geary, and celebrated with champagne. Hours later, the festivities began at the Panorama Club, 1500 Locust Street. With the twinkling lights of Philadelphia at night as a backdrop, we indulged in food and drink, swimming, dancing and conversation in celebration of our new residencies.

ATLANTIC CITY MEDICAL CENTER

Atlantic City Medical Center is a two division, 615 bed hospital system located at the beautiful southern New Jersey shore. Our medical staff and employees are devoted to quality care individualized to meet the unique needs of every patient. We take pride in our services, state-of-the-art equipment, and in the vital role we play within the community and surrounding area.

Our medical staff is highly skilled in the practice of 13 medical specialties and 15 subspecialties. Our facilities house the regional Neo-natal Intensive Care Unit, the Ruth Newman Shapiro Regional Cancer Treatment Center, and two of the busiest Emergency Departments in the nation.

The Atlantic City Medical Center values its affiliation with Hahnemann University. Many of our medical staff are Hahnemann graduates, and we take pride in our close ties with the many fine students who have participated in our training programs.

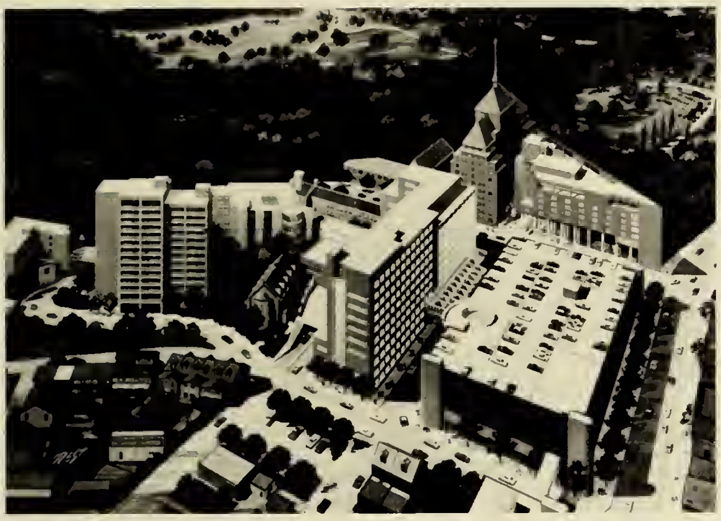
At St. Francis Health System, your health is our business.



IT'S COMFORTING TO KNOW THAT when you're sick someone nearby is in the business of caring for you.

St. Francis Medical Center, a component of St. Francis Health System, provides state-of-the-art medical care. Located four miles from downtown Pittsburgh, the hospital offers more than 200 beds in a separate psychiatric facility and the largest Department of Rehabilitation Medicine between Philadelphia and Chicago. New facilities for Emergency and Outpatient Services (including same day surgery) are strengths of its medical-surgical section. A joint venture of nine area hospitals for home care originated at St. Francis. Its Division of Cardiology is the only local program complete with every available diagnostic tool including heart catheterization. As the first hospital in Pittsburgh to treat cancer with a betatron, our oncology program still ranks among the best in the area. The Department of Diagnostic Radiology was the first in the city to add a CT scanner to its battery of equipment. Our ophthalmologists were among the first nationally to implant intraocular lens. The first endourology service in the city for the removal of kidney stones without surgery was opened here. The Chemical Dependency Program is one of the most comprehensive in the nation, treating mothers-to-be, senior citizens, adolescents and adults. St. Francis opened the first Premenstrual Syndrome (PMS) unit in Pittsburgh and an Eating Disorders Unit for adults with anorexia, bulemia and obesity.

The largest medical center in Western Pennsylvania, St. Francis is a teaching hospital with eight residency programs:

- Transitional Program
- Internal Medicine
- Diagnostic Radiology
- Psychiatry
- Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery
- Ophthalmology
- Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation
- A Fellowship in Cardiology

St. Francis also conducts accredited schools for registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, respiratory care technicians and nurse anesthetists.
